All components must be included in the costs of the event: for example costs for the location, the relatives, and even the travel expenses, if e.g. a bus is rented for the trip to the event, i.e. a joint trip.

Workforce discount May be granted exemption from taxation and social security up to 1,080.00 EUR per employee per year, whereas, a discount of 4 % must first be taken from the final price charged to the ultimate consumer.

They are exempt from social security contributions and can be set at a flat rate of 15 % if the following formula is retained: 15 days/month x distance allowance x number of kilometers between home and first place of work (one way). If public transport is used, higher amounts can also be reimbursed tax-free according to the proof of acquisition costs. The option of flat-rate wage tax at 25% for travel expenses reimbursement without offsetting against the commuting allowance is also available.

Inflation bonus: from October 26, 2022 to December 31, 2024, employers can grant their employees an amount of up to 3,000 EUR free of tax- and social security contributions. This is a tax-free allowance that can also be paid out in several installments, but must always be granted in addition to the wages owed anyway. It is sufficient if the employer makes it clear when granting the bonus that it is related to the price increase - for example, by making a corresponding reference on the remittance slip as part of the payroll.

EUR 50.00 exemption limit for benefits-in-kind Enables tax- and social security exempt "payments" of up to 50.00 EUR per month to the employees, The payment may be converted into gifts or vouchers. In accordance with the requirements of the Payment Services Supervision Act, the employee cards must be limited to their own product range, a group of points of acceptance in Germany (e.g. postcode areas) or providers with a uniform brand identity in Germany (e.g. fuel cards of a petrol station).

SAFEGUARDING THE FUTURE

The new "German law strengthening occupational pensions" Safeguarding the future presently appears as follows: Expenses for safeguarding the future do not differ in any inflow/inflow of wages.

No inflow of wages

- For pension commitments (in this case, the later pension benefits in the form of a company pension or civil servant's pension),
- for expenses for reinsurance,
- for contributions to a supporting fund (in this case, the later pension benefits in the form of a company pension or civil servant's pension).

Inflow of wages Tax and social security treatment of occupational pension:

Implementation channel	Social security treatment
Pension fund/ direct insurance	Tax consideration depends on date of conclusion. As a rough indication, the following applies: Conclusion prior to 31 December 2004 > old rule; lump-sum taxation at 20 % up to a total value of 1,752.00 EUR (exception - group contracts: eligible for consolidation into a lump sum up to an amount of 2,148.00 EUR). Conclusion after 31 December 2004 > up to a maximum contribution amount of 4% of the contribution ceiling exempt from taxation and social security. Additional 1,800.00 EUR tax-exempt, but subject to social security. As of January 1st, 2018, the maximum contribution increased to 8% of the contribution assessment ceiling and thus to 7,248.00 EUR as of 01.01.2024; the social security ceiling remains at 4% of the BBG (3,624.00 EUR).
Pension fund	Tax-exempt contributions are non-contributory up to 4% of the contribution ceiling in the pension insurance. This also applies to tax-exempt benefits from an employer or a support fund for a pension fund to take over existing pension obligations or acquired pension entitlements. From January 1st, 2018 the maximum contribution increased to 8 % of the contribution ceiling.
Direct commitment/support fund	Expense of the employer, which does not originate from deferred compensation, is fully non-contributory. Expense, which originates from the deferred compensation, is non-contributory for up to 4% of the contribution ceiling in the pension insurance (2024: 3,624.00 EUR). In general, payments made during the accumulation period are tax exempt.

PLEASE NOTE: From January 1st, 2019, the new German Law Strengthening Occupational Pensions will have further influence. Employers will then be required by law to pay a contribution of 15 % for occupational pensions in the case of new contracts for salary conversion into the company pension without employer liability. This obligation applies if the employer saves on social security contributions through deferred compensation. Old contracts must also be subsidised by law from 1st January 2022.

Supplements for Sunday, holiday and night work The following supplements to the basic wage are tax-exempt, if they are attributable to income from non-self-employment:

Sundays	up to 50 %
Statutory holidays and 31 December (from 2:00 p.m.)	up to 125 %
Christmas (24 December from 2:00 p.m.; 25/26 December) and on 1 May	up to 150 %
Night work from 8:00 p.m. until 6:00 a.m., - if work is started before 12:00 a.m. for the time from 12:00 a.m. until 4:00 a.m. - otherwise	up to 40 % up to 25 %

Sunday and holiday supplements cannot be combined. A combination of a night work supplement and supplements for Sunday and holiday work is possible; however, this may result in a maximum of 190 %. For Sunday, holiday and night supplements (SHN), exemption from social security only exists for a maximum basic wage of 25.00 EUR/hour.

Caution: The so-called SHN allowance must continue to be paid in the event of illness and vacation based on the average income of the last three months. They are then subject to tax and social security contributions.

TRAVEL EXPENSES

For journeys between home and the initial workplace a lump-sum of 0.03 % may apply. There is also the possibility of applying a lump-sum of 0.002 % to less frequent journeys or even using a factor of 0.001 % for settlement, if journeys only occur occasionally.

Transport costs All journeys due to professional external activity, which do not take place between home and the initial workplace, will be considered travel expenses, which may be compensated by the employer on a tax-exempt basis.

- Actual expenses for transportation – fare including surcharges for public transport.

New regulation of sick leave Introduction of the electronic certificate of incapacity for work: This is intended to replace the submission of the "yellow note", with the exception of those with private insurance. With effect of 1st January 2023 health insurance funds will inform the employer electronically on demand of the beginning and duration of the incapacity to work of his legally insured employees as well as the time of the expiry of the continued payment of wages.

A1 certificates for assignments abroad: A1 certificates for Europe must still be applied for even for short-term assignments abroad. The applications for privately insured employees are submitted to the German Pension Insurance. For employees who travel frequently, it is a good idea to apply for a longer-term confirmation via the DVKA. These measures serve to ensure the avoidance of double social insurance contributions abroad. The social insurance is always due according to the place of work and can be avoided with the A1 certificate for foreign countries.

Attention: Even Managing Directors and Executives are not exempt from the A1 obligation.
